

Go bright, go graphic, go overboard. Pattern play from the spring collections—and the streets.

PHOTOGRAPHED BY SEBASTIAN KIM

SHEER PLAID

Crepe de Chine top, cotton voile top and skirt, silk tulle pants, leather bag, necklace, and bracelet by Chanel. Leather shoes by Michael Kors Collection. Rouge Allure Velvet Lip Colour in La D licate by Chanel. These pages: Hair, Brent Lawler; makeup, Stevie Huynh; manicure, Donna D. Prop stylist: Tom Criswell. Model: Grace Mahary. Fashion editor: Siobhan Bonnouvrier. Details, see Shopping Guide.

A mix of prints during New York spring 2016 fashion week

Caroline Issa poses in Paris.

Bright color and patterned platforms

Fashion blogger
Charlotte
Groeneveld in Valentino

A lace bird-motif dress

A pleated dress
with bold stripes

FROM LEFT: KRISTIN SINCLAIR/GETTY IMAGES; JASON LLOYD-EVANS (2)

PRINTED MATTER

Members of the most colorful street-style tribe create a kaleidoscope of patterns. The arresting prints splash color across clothes and accessories like a graffiti mural, and the eye-catching energy goes all the way from heels to necklines. The only rule: Go bold or home, because you will be noticed. —LEXI NOVA

TEXTURED FRINGE
Organza dress and belt by Michael Kors Collection.
Pure Color Envy Sculpting
Lipstick in Impassioned
by Estée Lauder. Details,
see Shopping Guide.

TROPICAL PRINT

Silk crepe de Chine top and skirt, leather heels, and Swarovski-crystal pin by Gucci. Pop Glaze Sheer Lip Colour + Primer in Melon Drop Pop by Clinique. Details, see Shopping Guide.